SUBJECT: NEW UPPER MANAGEMENT POSITION AT J. P. MASCARO & SONS: DIRECTOR OF OPERATIONS – ENVIRONMENTAL FACILITIES

Emphasizing the commitment of local waste services company J. P. Mascaro & Sons to total environmental compliance at its approved waste facilities, which include DEP-permitted landfills, transfer and composting facilities, as well as modern recycling centers, company President, Pat Mascaro, announced the establishment of a new corporate upper-management position – “Director of Operations – Environmental Facilities.”

Speaking to the newly-created position, Mascaro said, “Our company is committed to environmental compliance. We understand precisely that to deliver necessary services to our customers and to meet regulatory requirements, we must have a first-class facility infrastructure which operates in strict accordance with applicable federal, state, and local rules and regulations. Our family-owned and operated business has made great strides in this regard over the past 25 years, and we are proud of our operating record.”

Mascaro added, “We recognize that today’s business climate conditions mandate a heightened ‘total arms-around approach’ to achieve our corporate compliance goals. Knowing this reality, our company has established additional oversight in our corporate management team related to our environmental control facilities. This new oversight position is ‘Director of Operations – Environmental Facilities,’ which includes our company-related sanitary landfills, recycling facilities, compost facilities, and transfer stations. The position reports to the Director of Operations for all company activity.”

The Mascaro company is looking to fill this new operations-related position with an individual having a strong background in public and private-sector environmental management. With the staffing of this new position, Mascaro will strengthen the already significant management oversight at its environmental facilities and will be better able to maintain its first-class facilities’ infrastructure that is needed to serve its current and future valued customers.

J. P.
